MS. B.1.6 v.6, p.49

Dublin, Feb. 27. 1857.

Dear Mr Treacy — The box came today. My son has occasion to go to Messrs Reeves, the tools the rest for Mrs Rockett & the Latch portion of the consignment. I will attend to the rest immediately. I enquire the post rate to the cheapest way of sending the smaller portion of the small packages. For any they under 4lb weight & going any considerable distance it is usual the cheapest, quickest, & safest way.

As to any directions I give you in my intermediate letters about subscriptions or the like you are to regard that only as the notice that such a one has paid me for such a purpose, or has become a subscriber. When I send my account half yearly or at any other time if fully stated, that shows how we stand, & the preceding directions ~~with~~ this last account will be acted on it.

Since my last account I have received from Miss Eliza Jacob £2 for the Liberated parties as a donation & party to pay for her papers for 1857 & omitted for me to Miss Deborah Lough (Rathgar Road, Dublin, head the Leinster House) for 1857. Miss Jacob is I think already a subscriber, her address is Ballytore, Ireland. Co. Kildare Ireland. I have rec'd ~~for the Belfast Fund~~ from

I dont know whether I did right in asking Mr Pounds to place the Half Round in Mr Sears hands. I thought an Invalid had a long way from the town he might have to come difficulty, delay, & additional expense. I am afraid I offended him for I had a letter in consequence to which I made an apologetic reply. The agents charge for conveyance, town dues, Hamper, &c. &c. came to 19/10 & the 2 pounds, with 3/7 for transmission to Dublin of the Box. The contents I will Lent as economically as I can to their destination I when I saw to be as respectable a man as there is in Ilford - but you know who such places are full of keen cutted people that like to be well paid for their trouble. when we employed Pounds for jobs of this kind I thought he cut more than the regular people - there was so much extra for carting &c probably did not know we had to go to work.

As a matter of choice I would prefer C.K.S. to either I.L. or P.P. though dont say I said so. Whipplin style is much more likely to please English readers than the banter of the one & the sentimentalism of our highly toned friend. Whipplin writings I have always liked for their compactness, clearness, & good sense. McKinnon would do very well for us too. Mr Sutton was extremely - I might say bitterly English. He did not like my occasional Irish jocosity. He had a playful, pleasant way of his own & was truly charming but it was always within English limits.

How the box escaped without any charge for duty then time I cant imagine - they saw them both found it. The thanks it appeared not to have been disturbed in Ilford at all. Probably then was the result of my declaration to Mr Sears that the contents were not for sale but for a charitable purpose. It is possible. When Sutton last came over he left in a huge temper & then account, partly because he was W.L.S.

I am much grieved whenever by what you say of H.C.W. I thought the charge unkindly to be true though I can easily understand how it might originate. When he was here he often left me in hot water — between the disposition of people who disliked him to think ill of him, & the hands he would have given them of his dalliers with every ladies had been obtained by his enemies. I did not admire such doings myself — but I believe them to be indiscreet — but I knew they could be explained with a very humble explanation many who knew me and hated him. I wonder he has not made fewer than to give any woman his heart. State he is guilty to be felt for in his solitary position. He wonders whether to offend a family engagement is to be ordered by his unkind relations. The report reached us not from any enemy to the cause — but simply from a female relation in the west who knew positively more than the newspaper that may occasion to its victim

Never make any apologies for your letters — they are always beautifully written & delightful to read — at least to I regard them — I am much obliged to Mr. Phillips for the photographs & all my friends for the books — which I hope to turn to good account. It gives me very great satisfaction to know that the advocate meets the approval of those whom I most wish to please — Ever Ever truly & affectionately
